Health First Colorado Estate Recovery Program

Dear Joseph Mahoney,

The Colorado Department of Health Care Policy and Financing (HCPF) oversees Health First Colorado (Colorado's Medicaid program).

The Health First Colorado Estate Recovery Program may apply to you. You are receiving this letter either because you are 50 or older, or you permanently live in an institution. We want you to know about estate recovery so you can make informed decisions about your health care.

What is estate recovery?

Estate recovery helps pay the costs of providing care to Health First Colorado members. It is required by federal law. The law says the State of Colorado must take money from a member's estate after they die to help repay costs for certain health care services the member received.

HCPF may take money from a member's estate after they die if the member was:

- Permanently institutionalized such as living in a nursing facility or other long-term care institution at any age.
- 55 or older and received long-term care services and support like nursing facility benefits, home and community-based services (HCBS), or other waiver services.

HCPF may recover the cost of long-term care services and support and any hospital and prescription drug services related to the long-term care or waiver benefits.
